Tattoo Removal

Majority of clinics have Q switched Nd:Yag laser with two wave lengths but our FDA approved Q switched laser with Ruby laser technology has three wave lengths is first of its kind that targets Red colour as well, which is not targeted by other tattoo removing machines. This Q-switches laser's wavelength is more effective for the colors which are very difficult to remove. It is measured in nano seconds.

This technique is able to remove the black and blue pigments successfully.

The nano technology of ruby laser with effective wave length is able to remove the red, yellow and green pigments efficiently which other Q switched lasers are unable to do.

Two types of Tattoos are there

- Amature Tattoo: Tattoo with Black ink Not very deeply penetrated into the skin easy to remove in just 1 to 2 sittings Professional tattoo
- Colored tattoo with black, Green, red or other dark color deeply penetrated in to skin

Not very easy to remove Need 6-8 sittings for better results with laser

Does tattoo removal cause pain

This is another question that will come to your mind , Yes, Laser Tattoo Removal hurts. This is because of the impact of energy from the laser pulse. This feels that someone continuously hitting your skin with a rubber band. For reducing the pain of laser, Doctors might apply an anesthetic cream 2 hours before the procedure begins. This cream will be wiped off before laser surgery starts.

After care is very essential to prevent infection, side effect, skin texture change etc.

- 1: You have to take proper care of treated area.
Apply antibiotic ointment
3 times in a day.
- 2: You should cover the treated area with dressing for 2-3 days.
- 3: Protect the area from direct sunlight. Wear a sun block which can be helpful.
- 4: Usage of cosmetic should be avoided, because it can cause side effect.
- 5: Hot baths should be avoided.

So Don't worry if you get a wrong tattoo or want to remove unwanted tattoo. Q switched Nd:Yag laser with Ruby laser is the best and the easiest method for tattoo removal.
